MAYOR'S FOOD COMMITTEE IN FIRST SESSION

40 Hear Discussion of Ways for City To Cooperate with U. S. Program.

The citizens food committee named this week by Mayor Harry L. Dowler held its first general meeting last night at Central Junior high school.

More than 40 committee members representing local groups that comprise the general 150-person comittee attended the meeting which started at 8 p. m. and lasted about an hour.

Mayor Dowler opened the meeting and introduced food committee chairman Bernhard Peterson who led a discussion on the food conservation problem and the handling of the local program.

It was decided that for more adequate administration of the voluntary government sponsored program three committees should be formed, an executive committee, a publicity committee and later a finance committee.

To Coordinate

The first would serve to coordinate to a certain extent the activities of the many local groups represented in the general city committee. The publicity committee will disseminate information as to the means by which the community may aid in the conservation program and report on what is being done. The finance committee will be appointed later and have as its function the promotion of sponsorship for food conservation advertising.

Chairman Peterson will announce his committee appointments within the next few days. Appointment of a secretary for the local activities program also will be made within a few days.

Cooperation of the city restaurants has already been assured, it was reported last night. Mr. Peterson pointed out that Hotel Harding and most of the city's eating establishments were already observing the meatless and poultryless days. It was pointed out that nearly a quarter of Marion's population is served by local restaurants.

State Activities

Meanwhile from Columbus comes the announcement that the governor's food committee will emphasize economies to be effected through low prices in addition to attempting to solve questions of food supply.

Chairman Joseph Hall, Kroger company president, announced yesterday the dual purpose, saying, "we are developing a program which we think will do the job. We are tying in the producing level through the consumer and saving at both ends. It will be a program not so much of what not to do as what to do."

TWO KILLED IN FIRE AT CLEVELAND PLANT

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25 — Two men were killed and three firemen burned critically today in a $400,000 fire marked by spectacular explosions of paint products at the Perma Products Co.

More than 100 firemen from 15 fire companies fought the early morning blaze and scores of spectators ran for cover as large drums of paint and stain exploded, showering sparks and flaming liquid over the neighborhood.

Believed killed were Charles Baxter, 60, night watchman at the plant, and William Chavin, about 45, a shipping clerk.

Company officials estimated damage at $400,000.

Three firemen were taken to a hospital for treatment of second degree burns and their condition was reported serious.

An explosion within the plant hurled burning timber into the air, flames shot a hundred feet high and rolling gray clouds of acrid smoke enveloped the area.

GALION ADDS SPECIAL POLICE

Force Enlarged as City Awaits Council Strike Conference at 11 A. M. Monday.

Special to The Star

GALION, Oct. 25—The potentially explosive strike situation at the North Electric Co. still grips this community of 9,000 waiting out a truce scheduled to end Monday between the company and the UAW-CIO.

City officials took steps today to bolster the police force, swearing in more than 100 special policemen and seeking police aid from neighboring communities.

The meeting Monday between the North company officials and representatives of the auto workers union will be watched closely by top state executives.

Emissaries of Governor Herbert already have checked on the Galion situation, which is being watched closely from the state house in Columbus.

Congressman Due

In addition Rep. Clare Hoffman (R) of Michigan, conducting a house labor committee probe on strike violence in Michigan may be on hand Monday as the showdown develops. Rep. Hoffman announced he had received authorization from Rep. Fred Hartley (R) of New Jersey to visit the North company plant at Galion. He was to arrive here this weekend.

He will join such Ohio officials as Brig. General Kenneth Cooper, assistant state adjutant general and Lt. Col. Richard V. Graham, Ohio National Guard staff officer who was responsible for the truce that ended the Wednesday night blockade at the plant.

The governor's secretary, Robert Jones, spent part of Friday in Galion gathering information on the developments in the situation from the city officials and representatives of the contending factions at the request of Governor Herbert.

Meetings have been conducted at all hours both at the city building and at Hotel Talbott, headquarters of visiting officials and newsmen prepared for the possible development of a contest over the administration of the Taft-Hartley law and resulting strife.

Galion townspeople have been active in seeking to prevent trouble. A group of nine clergymen have been in close contact both with law enforcement officials and more recently with the state officials since Thursday's developments. The clergy's activity was paralleled by that of a committee of Galion businessmen interested in the preservation of law and order.

Mayor William Amann, who bolstered his police by an additional 100 men received assurance that police aid would be forthcoming from Crestline and Bucyrus. Requests to Mansfield and Marion were turned down, however.

Bitterness of feeling between some company employes and the UAW was evidenced Friday by a message sent to the company saying they would resign if negotiations were resumed with the union. Their stand was backed up further by a similar notification from 20 of the 30 college trained company engineers.

TRUMAN SEEKS TWOFOLD AIMS

Asks G.O.P. for Prompt Action To Lower Prices, Aid Europe.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—President Truman confronted the Republican congress today with a demand for "prompt and courageous action" to halt runaway prices at home and snatch Europe back from the edge of economic disaster.

With this demand he coupled a sharp warning of his conviction that failure to act would lead to a depression in America and "totalitarian aggression" in Europe.

This winter, he said, is a "decisive time in history."

Those, he told a national radio audience last night, are the reasons why he has summoned congress into special session Nov. 17.

Even before he spoke, and in comments immediately afterward, some of the Republican leaders in congress made it clear that the Democratic administration will have a fight on its hands over measures to be taken.

Charge "Politics"

Rep. Halleck (R-Ind.), house majority leader, and Rep. Wolcott (R-Mich.) chairman of the house banking committee, accused the President of "playing politics" by linking rising living costs with foreign aid.

Senator Flanders (R-Vt.), chairman of a house-senate subcommittee investigating the cost of living, said the President "has stated our problem" on high prices but "has not given much help on how the thing is to be solved."

However, Sen. Morse (R-Ore.) said he thought the President's speech "very able" and predicted congress would "meet it on the plane of cooperation it calls for." He said the details of Mr. Truman's program "should await his message when congress meets."

Senator O'Connor (D-Md.) said the President's message "was a forthright one and should commend itself to all who approach the attempted solution of these important problems in a non-partisan manner."

The President spoke little more than 24 hours after announcing from the same executive office that he had ordered the special session. His speech was confined entirely to the reasons for that action.

Gives Few Details

The program which he wants congress to enact will be laid down when it meets Nov. 17. The only details on this point that he gave out last night were that France must have $357,000,000 for essential imports until next March 31, and Italy must have $285,000,000.

These figures make up the total of $642,000,000 of emergency foreign aid which he had previously presented to congressional leaders. Republican leaders said the figures would be subject to the most searching examination, and the need for the money would have to be proved.

In addition, the President said, more money "will have to be appropriated this year in order for us to maintain our position" in Germany, Japan and Korea.

Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall said in another radio broadcast that the total to be asked for the occupied areas might be around $500,000,000.

PERFORMS FOR YOUNGSTERS. 52 LOSE LIVES IN AIR CRASH

Pilot's Battle Against Flames Ends in Defeat Just Short of Emergency Field.

By The Associated Press

BRYCE CANYON, Utah, Oct. 25—A United Air Lines DC-6 plunged 52 persons to a fiery death shortly after noon yesterday, as the pilot lost a valiant battle with unexplained flames just 1,500 yards from the safety of an emergency landing strip.

The New York-bound four-engined ship, flight 608 from Los Angeles, smashed near the rim of Tropic canyon in Bryce Canyon National park, and exploded, scattering wreckage and bodies over an area of several hundred yards.

Trailing smoke and flames for at least 22 miles before it crashed, the giant ship plowed a smoke-blackened swath for 800 yards alongside state highway 22 just east of the Bryce Canyon airport. The scene is in southern Utah, about 275 miles south of Salt Lake City.

Only Tail Remains

The engines, scorched and twisted, were thrown 200 to 300 feet beyond the burned area. A piece of the tail, 15 to 20 feet long, was the largest part of the craft remaining.

The bodies, burned and unrecognizable for the most part, were horribly torn apart.

Two infants and 21 or more women were among the victims. One of the women was an expectant mother.

The mutilated remains were

REPORT FINDING OF EVIDENCE

New Angle Develops as Fighters Appear To Be Gaining Upper Hand.

By The Associated Press

BAR HARBOR, Me., Oct. 25—A calm night gave battling crews a new defense foothold against the New England forest fire sweep but they were working fast today against freshening winds as police throughout the area hunted firebugs.

Hard-hit Maine, with seven communities destroyed, reported its busiest front today in Washington county and the weather bureau said winds may climb to 15 miles an hour.

Reported evidence of arson were being investigated by police from Cape Cod to Maine and Massachusetts was fighting two flareups in Falmouth on Cape Cod and Gloucester.

This island resort reported its stand against flames "the best it has been" and police authorized Sam J. Sachman to open his clothing store to supply fire crews and emergency workers.

Survivors who escaped in a Dunkerque-like sea evacuation are banned from returning for at least another 24 hours, Police Chief George C. Abbott said.

Damage at $27,000,000

A new report of a million dollar loss by the mayor of Rochester, N. H., brought the New England fire cost up to $27,000,000.

Relief centers reported housing an estimated 2,300 fire-homeless in Maine.

In Massachusetts Royal A. Gaw, 24, was arrested for arson and sentenced to two months in the house of correction after admitting he set a fire "on a dare" in the North Reading woods.

Police in Wilmington reported they were questioning two boys about fires there.

The Red Cross said the homeless-displaced list might reach 6,000 and estimated that at least 506 permanent homes vanished in flames, together with hundreds of cottages.

Police investigation of the arson angle came as weary firefighters appeared to be gaining mastery over blazes throughout New England which contributed toward a national death toll of 18.

Pick Up Suspect

Even as Joseph A. P. Flynn, chief of the Maine's insurance department's arson division said he had "well-grounded suspicions that some of the fires have been set," police at Biddeford reported they were questioning a suspect.

The youth was picked up after Biddeford police became suspicious of a fire which forced evacuation of two hospitals.

Fire Chief Arthur S. O'Brien of West Falmouth, just outside Portland, said there was evidence a candle had been burning within an inch of dry pine needles when it was discovered by two Girl Scouts on a farm. He described its presence as a "clear cut case of the work of a firebug."

Deputy Sheriff Ralph C. Hosmer of Standish said burning wood shavings had been found near a wood lot in that town but had been made harmless.

Last night Maine saw its seventh community go up in flames—the tiny hamlet of Unionville in Washington county.

The fire stopped at the Jonesboro border, veered toward Machias and levelled several buildings.

Bar Harbor Is "Ghost"

Bar Harbor, scene of a small-scale Dunkerque Thursday night, appeared like a "ghost town" today.

Palatial homes, once the show places of the millionaires' summer playground, lay in ruins. Haggard men walked listlessly around, seeking some trace of their party.

Fear today centered around Northeast Harbor, a few miles from Bar Harbor. Fires burned fiercely in that area, but officials said that, barring an unexpected high wind, they probably would subdue the blaze.

Several other fires continued in the state but the arrival of fresh personnel, including 500 soldiers from Mitchell Field, N. Y., raised hopes there would be no more major disasters.

Await Rainfall

The national Red Cross set aside $500,000 for rehabilitation, but local officials said this would not be attempted until there was sufficient rainfall to insure against further devastation.

Stubborn fires also had burned forest areas of New Jersey, Michigan, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, the Canadian province of New Brunswick and Halifax, N. S., but Maine's predicament was by far the most serious. Pennsylvania and West Virginia had closed woods until the hazard is eliminated.

President Truman, under a "mercy priority," authorized the war assets administration to lend such aid to Maine as possible.

ANOTHER of the proposals put forward by President Truman and presented at the opening meeting of the conference—the implementation of the Yalta Declaration on Liberated Europe—related to a matter that had not been included in the Yalta Declaration, and had not been carried out. A continuation of the existing control of Rumania and Bulgaria by the Soviet Union, despite the fact that the Soviet Union had declared that the purpose of the occupation of those countries by its armies was solely military, was making impossible the establishment of governments truly representative of the people. We, therefore, proposed that the Soviet Union should withdraw its control commissions from Rumania and Bulgaria, and that the Allied Control Commissions in Italy, Rumania and Bulgaria should be instructed to the future relations between the Soviet Union and the United States would depend largely upon the degree of friendship and cooperation which existed between the Soviet Union and the United States in the liberated countries. We proposed that the withdrawal of the Soviet Control Commissions should be followed by the withdrawal of the British and American representatives on the Allied Control Commissions, and that thereafter the governments of Rumania and Bulgaria should be established through the unsupervised elections in which all democratic groups should participate and vote by secret ballot. We proposed that the three states should help the people of Rumania and Bulgaria to prepare for free and unfettered elections by permitting full freedom of the press, speech and assembly, including freedom of the radio, freedom to publish political views and freedom to hold political meetings. We proposed that representatives of the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union should be sent to Rumania and Bulgaria to report to their governments upon developments in Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland.

I must admit I was a little surprised that this was the proposal to implement the Declaration on Liberated Europe, for I had assumed that we had gone as far as we could in the Yalta Declaration and had been careful not to go beyond it. PRESIDENT TRUMAN and his secretary of state James Byrnes, are shown in the open of the cruiser Augusta as they sailed for "Big Three" conference in Potsdam.

In the meantime the Soviet Union had placed on the table a second series of charges against Greece in obvious retaliation for a British paper directed against Yugoslavia. When agreement was finally reached on the foregoing section of the protocol, Mr. Bevin pointed out that the agenda carried two papers against Greece and one against Yugoslavia. He proposed that all three be dropped. Stalin quickly replied "Yes, welcome." It was a good demonstration of the personalities with which some of the charges and counter-charges were made.

During the sixteen months which followed the Potsdam Conference, Secretary of State Byrnes helped to pilot five peace treaties through long and arduous but successful negotiation. The job took him to London in September, 1945, to Moscow in December, back to London for the first meeting of the General Assembly of the United Nations, to Paris twice and finally to New York. He traveled more than 50,000 miles before the peace treaties with Finland, Italy, Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary were finally signed.

The treaties were "not written as we would write them if we had a free hand," the secretary reported to the nation, but they were a hard, first step on the road to peace. Their negotiation gave him an unparalleled opportunity to appraise the foreign policy machinery of the United States. In the next installment of "Speaking Frankly" which will be published Monday, Mr. Byrnes outlines his conclusions on how we can build "a people's foreign policy" independent of party politics.

Only one-tenth of the population of Sinkiang Province, China, is Chinese, the remainder of the people being of ancient Persian stock.

should seek the friendship of the people rather than of any particular government. We, therefore, said we favored governments to be representative of the people if elections were held at which there were candidates not only of newspaper and radio correspondents but upon our own governmental representatives as well, the American people would not trust any government established as a result of such an election. We do not want to become involved in the affairs of any country but, because of the position we have won in the war, we are in others as under the elections now in Italy, Greece, Hungary Rumania and Bulgaria.

The discussion contained arguments heard scores of times during the ensuing month. Whenever the Soviets were faced with an issue that annoyed them or placed them on the defensive it was standard operating procedure for them to bolster up a story of British and American press reports from Greece and fashion a counter-story. Mr. Molotov always seemed ready to supply the elements of what he called "free press."

The Soviet "Technique"

A few days later our paper came up with an even more startling example of the Soviet technique.

"The Soviet Union," Molotov said, "can not agree to the supervision of elections. I can understand, though, that other Allies want better facilities for their representatives in these countries. Now that the war is at an end, there is every reason to give greater freedom both to these representatives and to the press. They will have every opportunity to be informed fully regarding the elections."

Having stated an opposition and a promise, he then lodged a complaint that the Soviet representative on the Allied control council in Italy was not receiving proper attention. He followed these parries and thrusts with an offer to discuss our proposal regarding elections if we would agree to accord diplomatic recognition to Rumania and Bulgaria.

Eden explained that formal recognition was constitutionally impossible for Britain until peace was concluded. I told him that our recognition of a country had to be based on our own estimate of it rather than on its value as a bargaining point. But Mr. Molotov is a difficult man to bargain with and the effort to extract a trade of [illegible] recognition for the [illegible] was defeated on [illegible]

Much of the Soviet parliamentary effort attempted on Italy was aimed at modification of Italy's armistice terms, a recognition of her help against Germany and of her neutrality of war against Japan. We had proposed that the drafting of an Italian peace treaty be the first order of business for the council of foreign ministers.

Want All Treated Alike

Both General Smith and Mr. Molotov were determined that no favor should be granted to Italy that was not also granted to Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria. One wearisome difference was pointed out to them constantly all foreign representatives were free to travel about in Italy and report their observations. During one of these exchanges, Mr. Churchill was stating that the British mission in Bucharest had been "penned up in a compound, approaching internment." Again Stalin broke in to say he hoped we could have such unverified statements.

Mr. Churchill responded gently that he had hoped that the remarks would be accepted at the catalogue of difficulties encountered by the British mission. An iron fence has come down around them."

"All fairy tales," Stalin exclaimed, and maintained that British representatives in Rumania were accorded the same courtesies received by Soviet officials in Italy.

Not until the end of the conference, when we united in a question to that of reparations, did we secure Soviet acceptance of Section 10 of the protocol. This stated, first, the desirability of concluding peace treaties and resuming normal relations with all five countries. It then stated that the three powers "have included the preparation of a peace treaty with Italy as the first among the immediate important tasks to be undertaken by the new council of foreign ministers." It then referred to the other four countries, in a way that permitted concurrent preparation of peace treaties with them if this were found feasible. We met the problem of recognition with the statement that "the three governments agree to examine each separately in the near future in the light of conditions then prevailing the establishment of diplomatic relations with Finland, Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary to the extent possible prior to the conclusion of peace treaties with those countries."

Concession To Press

The problem of the press was met by this statement. "The three governments have no doubt that in view of the changed conditions resulting from the termination of

We know that he does answer. We are to be Christians, the Lord to say 'no' once in a while may be sincere and yet be on the wrong track. We are content by making Jesus our personal Lord and Saviour."

Here's Post-war Power for Pre-war Buicks

A brand-new 1947 Fireball engine puts today's Sparkling Zip into your 1937-1942 Buick

IF you've been itching to get the thrill of a power-packed 1947 Buick engine under your treadle toe, here's the quick and happy solution.

It's a factory-fresh Fireball engine right off the 1947 production line. It's exactly the same mighty package of power that goes into the flashing new Buicks. You can get it now to repower any Buick built in the last ten years.

How can we do it—when new cars are so hard to get? Here's the answer:

While shortages of bodies and other parts slow up completed cars, Buick engine production has forged ahead. So engines are available now—ready to go into your car and step it up with today's up-to-the-minute power performance.

And it's as simple as this: We take out the old engine—put this new one in its place—and your car's young again, rarin' to go, with a new lease on life and headed for thousands and thousands of miles of smooth, spirited service.

It doesn't take long—far less time than a thorough overhaul—and often at less cost. Convenient payments can be arranged, if you like.

It's the next best thing to getting a new Buick—and a good investment because it makes your car worth so much more.

Certainly well worth while looking into, isn't it? Come in and let's talk it over.

Taft Sets the Pace

SENATOR TAFT has announced he is a running candidate for the next Republican presidential nomination. He will seek to delegates outside Ohio, which is the only surprising thing about the announcement to other words, he plans to go into the convention as a favorite son, like half a dozen other aspirants.

But that's party politics, something for politicians to consider. The thing for everybody else to consider is the impact Taft's political behavior has been having on public opinion. For the first time since New Dealers dumped the Democratic platform overboard in 1932, voters are examining a presidential hopeful who isn't afraid to say what he believes and believe what he says.

Taft is the only national figure whose principles and opinions are so clearly defined and so well known that he could be voted on for the presidency tomorrow. In that respect, he is so far ahead of the pussyfooters and the boys who came in late that they'll be lucky to catch up to him. It's a novelty in politics to mark your card out, but the novelty has become Senator Taft's chief asset.

He may never get to first base with the Republican presidential nomination next year. But he has done more to make the nomination worth having than any of the other hopefuls so far.

Sharing the Headache

PRESIDENT TRUMAN wisely has decided there is too much headache involved in the status quo to bear alone.

He is going to share it with the Republicans, beginning Nov. 17 with a special session of congress called for that date.

He has given two reasons for this unusual procedure: rising prices at home, increasing emergency in western Europe.

It is apparent there also is a third reason. The President needs something more substantial to back him up right now than the floundering elements of his patchwork administration.

He has called on the party of the opposition, which controls congress, to stand beside him on the throne of responsibility—the thing he promised would never be done when special-session rumors were circulating before adjournment last July. But Mr. Truman is sadder and wiser than he was last July.

The Republicans are on the spot for the second time since Mr. Truman became chief executive. Representative Martin and Senator Taft again are responsible for the coincidence the national government must command if it is going to handle responsibility for leadership at home and abroad.

These two congressional leaders and their advisers must devise ways and means of doing what Mr. Truman has been unable to do—command the people's confidence in their government's ability to see clearly what needs to be done and to do something about it incisively.

Unfortunately, responsibility will still be divided. Mr. Truman, it may be assumed, will continue to abuse his power of veto. But he must be aware, also, that the Republican majority in congress will be able to function only to the extent that he gives it a chance to function—and that if he chooses to play politics, instead, the Republicans can make him rue the day he decided to convene a special session.

Outmoded Anti-Trust Laws

SOME statements about the unsuitability of our present anti-trust laws are discounted because of their source. But Lowell B. Mason, the federal trade commissioner, agrees they are outmoded. The present laws are the basis for certain antique court rituals which have little or no effective connection with the social and economic needs of our people," he says.

Mason favors a trade conference method to replace the present prosecutions which extend through years and tie up courts with masses of testimony. He cites the price-fixing action against the steel industry as a case in point. A decision isn't likely before 1957 when the industrial picture will have changed so radically the original cause for action no longer will be pertinent.

Legislation empowering the trade commission to handle anti-trust cases in short order by calling industrywide conferences of businessmen is the remedy Mason proposed. His plan is worth considering.

The Covering Law

A NICE point of law was argued recently before the New Jersey supreme court when burlesque theater managers maintained that strip-teasers and other entertainers in their employ weren't entitled to unemployment compensation. Counsel for the theaters argued that strip-teasers were self-trained specialists and no more entitled to unemployment compensation than prize fighters. The court ruled otherwise.

While it's true that strip-teasers are in a trade which isn't seasonal, one who is out of work in the dead of winter needs protection even more than a riveter or clerk. New Jersey will see that she is covered.

Problems of Truman and Anderson.

THERE is no doubt that a great deal about Harry Truman's attitude toward the Marshall proposal and Clinton P. Anderson's appointment as secretary of agriculture is contradictory as they are.

Harry Truman is faced by two conditions:

1. That George Marshall committed this country to some specific figure of food exports in a relationship to the export of Europe in 1947 and that those European countries (16 to 17, which come within the scope of the Marshall plan, expect a delivery of about 1,500,000 tons a month (and as yet do not possess to deliver.

Therefore Mr. Truman wants to conduct a campaign for voluntary acceptation among the American people which will produce as many tons as possible to make up the difference between what is now impossible and what may perhaps be possible. It is bad arithmetic, but he does not want to let George Marshall down, nor does he want to let Europe down. Criticism of the figures or the plan of sacrifice does not necessarily mean criticism of aid to Europe. It may, in fact, assure such aid.

2. Harry Truman wants to maintain government buying of farm commodities at high prices during a campaign year even though farm prices have run beyond parity. He does not want farm prices to collapse or even to return to parity until after 1948, if at all. Although this produces an inflationary price structure in the larger values, he rules it.

One of these propositions is defended on the ground that it will save Europe from communism, the other that it will save the United States from a Republican victory.

Clinton P. Anderson, an extraordinarily competent secretary of agriculture across, because he understands his job:

1. That the United States can a short crop in grains this year because of the drouth.

2. That we can, at most, export about 12,000,000 tons of food this year comfortably;

3. That George Marshall has overpromised and is ahead for stretching beyond our capacity in this harvest year;

4. That if we attempt now to export 1,500,000 tons of food to Europe, we will have a terrific shortage next March, April and May which will be reflected in the United States and defeating to Europe;

5. That there is so much poultry and so many eggs in the United States that it is foolhardy, if not dangerous, to have a poultryless and eggless day.

6. That the great need of the world is fats and that restricted fat production on cattle in the food will do incalculable harm.

All of this Clinton P. Anderson did not tell me, but it can be accepted from his previous attitude, his 1946 food campaign, and public contradictions of presidential statements and from the reports which are available that that is the general and correct position. That puzzler is the only one that Anderson can consistently support. In fact, no secretary of agriculture, at all honest on the job, would take any other position. It is a matter, of course, of perspective.

Sold by Unknown

Unfortunately, the President was sold a pill of goods to accept a program prepared by an anonymous person or group. Isador Charles Luckman admitted was handed to him, by whom he did not say. The fact is that Secretary of Agriculture Anderson was bypassed and that Herbert Hoover, who had been Truman's food expert, was bypassed. It does not matter that Hoover was bypassed, as he is a private citizen, but the secretary of agriculture has a constitutional responsibility which cannot be ignored. Instead the Luckman committee was created to dramatize, by the hucksters' scare device, shortages which do not exist, while they ignore such a shortage of fats which does exist.

The confusion created by Luckman's dramatization would ordinarily be meaningless, but in a year of a reduced grain harvest it must become a menace at the end of the harvest year—a menace not only to the United States but to those whom we hope to aid. Congress ought to find out who wrote the plan that was handed to Luckman and who ordered the bypassing of the secretary of agriculture. They will discover the wit of the smart boys who resignations Truman has accepted before Henry Wallace scared him into taking actions which run counter to his judgment.

Good Will with Them Is a One-Way Street

Premier Stalin last week told a delegation of visiting members of parliament that Russia has every desire to cooperate with the western powers.

But, apparently, not a single method of showing it.

If the official Russian policy is indeed one of friendship, then the Kremlin had better call all its representatives in for a rebriefing, for they've sure got their signals crossed.

Stalin may not know it, but he's got fewer friends than the man in the soap ads.

And the way his representatives have been acting, Dale Carnegie's got nothing to worry about.

Yes sir, the blarney is that of Stalin but the veto is that of Vishinsky.

Actions speak louder than words and, in the case of the Russian cooperation, the silence is something less than deafening.

Prospects of De Gaulle

By Raymond Moley

THE first reaction to the de Gaulle comeback on the part of Americans who write and speak for public consumption was unbounded satisfaction that communism had received a sharp defeat. The second was some regret at the collapse of the French middle-of-the-road parties and a dim fear of de Gaulle on horseback. There were also wails in our leftist press that de Gaulle's rise brings us closer to war. As in all cases, these swings of opinion should soon reach a reasonable and hopeful equilibrium.

Americans, especially those with mildly leftist leanings, have developed an inordinate fear of strong governments abroad. This is understandable, after the tragic consequences of strong governments over the last two decades. But it may be well to caution ourselves against this fear. There have been strong and conservative European governments that did not foster intolerance and war. Not every believer in law and order is a Fascist. And de Gaulle is one person who knows full well how to avoid the excesses which ruined the safe recovery of Germany and Italy between the wars.

Further, de Gaulle himself, although he has an unpleasant personality, is no embryonic Napoleon. In his brief term as head of France, he first tried to reestablish the historic union of Russia and France. He also moved toward mild and partial nationalization. Then he was rebuffed by Stalin's denial of French aspirations for the Ruhr and by the Soviet's persistent denial of French equality in the many conferences since Potsdam.

De Gaulle is as much a French nationalist as was Clemenceau and will make it harder to settle the German question. But in the face of Anglo-American cooperation, his nationalism can be contained.

The collapse of the middle-of-the-road, semi-socialist parties was due to their own essential weaknesses. Their behavior since the end of the war has not reassured the thrifty and systematic element in France. Despite their strange history, the French people are unquestionably stable and orderly. Their recent governments have brought not stability, either in industrial relations or in finance. Labor itself has suffered from inflation. As long as French currency remained unstabilized, all classes suffered, and communism could hold its lines of propaganda. The French apparently do not relish a return of the 40-party politics of prewar days.

Misleading Picture

Americans have, over the war years, been unduly influenced in their thinking about France by refugee writers and visitors. Most of these failed to present France as it is, but used their influence in the United States to emphasize their special points of view. The real France has scarcely been represented in America.

This country needs exceptionally able representation in France in the months and years ahead. The French believe in personalities, both as their leaders and as foreign ambassadors. We need a new Benjamin Franklin as our ambassador in Paris. Our ambassadors to France under the Roosevelt administration were not reassuring people. An American with some elements of greatness can do much skillfully to advise de Gaulle and to bring stability in the economic life of France.

We must help with money and goods, but we cannot impose or buy French recovery. France needs an energetic government with a will toward the stabilization of her finances. It needs good administration of what we are going to give and lend under the Marshall plan. The elections just held offer a promise of a government able to do this. It will not be a wholly non-socialist government. But in the combination of parties that de Gaulle will need, there will be a strong color of those elements that in the past made France so essential to western civilization.

Some Pheasant Yarns

By Frank Tripp

THE hunter who goes forth to slay the brilliant cock pheasant, all fun all bound round with directives as to just how he must behave, should see the birds in their native realm. He would be spoiled forever for the spot as he knows it.

This is not to be a dissertation on how to get your bag of pheasants, by an old and experienced hand—for I never shot a pheasant in my life. I quit skinning my shins in second growth timber when the log-thumping partridge deserted my York State haunts and the jack rabbit took on the status of the cat, in the hunter's book. The Mongolian pheasant turned up popular about them.

Why I write about pheasants at all is because I have seen them where they grow to near the size of the turkey.

When first I saw them in pestered Manchuria I couldn't believe my eyes. The hens were the size of the cocks we know and the cocks were strutting Goliaths, broad-breasted, pot-filling temptors.

To see them was something, but to learn how easily they are taken by the natives was rare revelation.

If a Manchu had a gun he would start a revolution. He never would spend a shell on a pheasant. Neither need he proceed with license, red shirt and great preparation in order to get one.

A pheasant only costs him one three-finger shot of vodka, which he usually distills himself from potatoes.

He soaks a handful of kaoliang in three or four ounces of vodka and drops it in the back yard. Promptly a pheasant or pheasants, appear—and it need not be a cock pheasant. No Manchurian law protects the bird's weaker sex nor dictates the day they may be taken.

Home brewed vodka will paralyze a pheasant quicker than it will a tenderfoot from the States, which is plenty quick enough. The Manchu who needs himself a meal, and they always do, then walks leisurely up to the staggering pheasant, grabs him by the neck, gives him a lusty swing and hangs him up to cure. It's that easy.

I told a Manchu that we never take a hen pheasant, only shoot the cocks. He said "Bymbye your pheasants, they will be very small."

I can another pheasant experience that I must tell you about. As a young reporter, short of news, I overheard two hunters talking about pheasant lice, but made no inquiry of them. My luck turned out a new blank so I made one of those "once upon a time" stories out of whole cloth—about lice on pheasants. It must have been a hoax.

Twenty-four hours later a dignified gentleman walked in the office with my story in his hand. He was a big game warden. He said that he was New York State Entomologist.

I was on the spot so framed the story on two unidentified hunters over East Hill. I gave Mr. Felt ragged directions and he rented a horse and started in search of my imaginary hunters.

Toward night he returned empty-handed and suspicious of me. The spot I was on was getting hotter by the minute. As a peace offering we dropped in Breese's for a snifter—and met up with two more hunters.

Every reporter knows how easy it is to find someone who saw something that never happened. These two hunters knew a man who had seen lots of lice on pheasants. Conscientious Mr. Felt went forth next day to run down his new clue.

He found nothing but he did smoke out the last two hunters, who finally admitted that all they knew about pheasant lice was what they read in my story.

Mr. Felt and I became jointly indignant. I wrote a ludicrous and threatening story about folks who give false information to newspapers; commended Mr. Felt for his diligence, lamented his wild-goose chase and proclaimed him a faithful, painstaking public servant.

Mr. Felt left town with my two stories in his pocket; no doubt pasted them in his scrapbook—and we parted quite friends.

If a reporter got caught doing such reprehensible things today he'd get the gate. It seems, as of that day at least, that pheasant lice were as scarce as type lice. If that's Greek to you, ask a printer to show you some type lice sometime.

Peanut Project

The agriculture department says its experts are looking for a way to take the "mouth stickiness" out of peanut butter.

Launching a new research project to improve the quality of peanut products, the department said peanut butter's "oil separation" and "failure to keep well" would also receive "special attention." Half of the peanuts consumed as food are eaten in the form of peanut butter.

The research will be conducted at the department's New Orleans laboratory.

The Once Over

Elmer and the Check On Lunchrooms

"I just read a headline, 'Check on Lunch Observance of Food Rules Planned,' and it fills me as the zenith of flapdoodle. How anybody except a chemist tell for sure what being served in the run of the mill lunchrooms of America?" demanded Elmer Twitchell. "I defy anybody to identify what is dished up to him in millions of eateries which come properly under the heading of slop-chutes and hash. I got the American scene.

"I regret to say I am among the eat-and-dinners who frequent these restaurants and I have never yet been certain what was in what was chicken, what was eggs and what was filler of snakeskin, boiled plaster-board and wilted shingle under glass, with catsup."

Elmer was quite disturbed. "The only time any patron can be positive of in these commercial hand-is-faster-than-the-eye lunchrooms, lunch wagons, bar-b-ques and one-arm joints is when he gets is not what he had in mind.

"Every day is a meatless, chickenless, egg-less day so far as the average customer can tell. I have been ordering chicken dishes, boy, for thirty years and am yet to discover anything that tasted like either. All my life I have been asking for meat dishes without being able to make a positive identification. And I find that those slop-chute cooks know about as much as that if you hold it over a hot flame you can get all the flavor of a rubber heel charred or broiled.

"I have suffered not only from meatless Tuesdays and chickenless Thursdays but from eggless Mondays, attentionless Wednesdays, sauceless Fridays, grubless Saturdays and napless Sundays in these places. And I am waiting to see any sign of improvement. On the contrary the cooking is getting progressively worse and the management more indifferent.

"Furthermore I would like to assure Luckman, the Citizens Food Committee and Harry Truman that even if they could make these places give up some of their food for Europe, Europe wouldn't take it."

Elmer paused to pour a pitcher of ice water over his emotions. "America has developed a strange race that isn't consuming food within the accepted meaning of the word. It is merely eating anything that can be spread, folded or mashed.

"It is amazing how many of this generation have come to think a lunch is anything that contains a yellowed lettuce leaf, some mayonnaise and a roll. If you add some sad-looking string beans it is dinner.

"The fellow who had high eating standards insisted on competent cooking and felt the chef should never be a scavenger with a bucket of grease and some matches, is rapidly fading out of American life. There are good restaurants, of course, in all communities, but the day when they predominated is over.

"Check on whether they are serving margarine chicken or eggs my eye! Even the help are sure," concluded Mr. Twitchell.

Look, No Drapes

By Truman Twill

This is something for the girls of all a past pinafores—a preview of some sweet revenge coming.

The master-minds that make the big decisions about American wardrobes are playing with a scheme to give men a "new look." Women are going to have a chance to see what their severest critics will do when confronted with a proposal for changing men's styles.

There's more to this than the vague rumor that the length of men's pants is going to be shortened sometime in the indefinite future. That will be only a minor detail of the "new look" the fashion experts have in mind for the great American sucker.

The big blow, it appears, will be a change in the length of coats. They will be shorter. If the designers can get away with it. In the case of formal attire, something most men don't have to worry about, the coats will be as short as Gen. Eisenhower's "battle jacket"—the one that shows off the general's trim fundament to the good advantage.

The trouble is, of course, that most men do not have trim fundaments. This is going to be a reverse of the issue over the "new look" for women. Whereas long skirts are concealing good-looking legs and also the ones pattern after period furniture, the idea in changing the style of men's coats will be to reveal the outline of the ah, er, fundament. (If the word puzzles you, it's defined like this in Webster's—"basis.")

This will be the ghastliest thing that has happened in this country since hill-billy music. If they can get away with it. Most men might consider the present long coats a boon and a blessing. They drape the over-endowed and the under-endowed with fine impartiality. Together with the padding in the shoulder, the length of the coats tends to make all men look pretty much alike.

If women are getting a little tired of wise cracks about their "new look," all they need to do is start to speculate on the "new look" for men. It is a subject rich in speculation. Take it from one who remembers what men used to look like in those chopped-off Buster Brown coats with the Slim Jim shoulders.

And what some of the blessedly draped get of today would look like in one of Eisenhower's battle jackets, if it ever came to that—stand back, ladies, and start to titter. Get your wise comments ready if the master-minds decide the time has come to prove that the same sissy characters who roared they'd never let a lot of chiselers lead them around by the nose can be led around by the nose.

Gain That Is Loss

A Sermonette

By REV. H. V. FALOR

Pastor of Oakland Evangelical United Brethren Church

TEXT: Matt. 16:26 "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?"

THIS question is one of those intensely personal, penetrating, unanswerable interrogations of the Master which brings us face to face with our accountability and responsibility to God. It becomes the more searching when we recall that the Christ who gave it had been in both this material world, and that land to which we shall depart when life here is done. He knows of the brevity of even the longest life of man here in comparison to the never ending ages yonder. He is aware of our tendency to place great emphasis on the mere temporal things of life, to the neglect or exclusion of eternal values and verities. He fully comprehends the cheapness of the best that this world as such can give in comparison to the never ending riches and glories of that heavenly kingdom. He understands as we never shall the value of just one human soul,—your soul. With tender love for you and compassionate awareness of how easy it is for you to be robbed of that best which He would freely give to you now and evermore, He asks you, "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?"

I. GAINING THE WORLD—No man ever has or ever will gain the whole world. Hitler did not. Stalin will not. But there is a sense in which every persons is seeking to gain the world, who in reckless abandonment of the high claims of God, and the debt which he owes to his fellowmen, goes all out for the fullest measure of what he can selfishly claim: in a life of indulgent living. Some go far in possessing great amounts of the world's riches, but without accepting their true sterwardship responsibilities to God, and their suffering, needy, unredeemed brothers. Some claim much of the world's debasing pleasures, not recognizing that such unworthy indulgence puts them at enmity with God.

The more such self-seekers get the more they want. They are never satisfied. When God is crowded out, what they get is more of a torment than a joy. So long as they reject God, even if they were to come into possession of all the world, it would be a disappointment, like the boy's bursted soap bubble. That which is wrongly gained is never truly enjoyed.

Only those who save their souls by repenting of their sins, and walking in the light which Christ sheds upon their pathway, gain the world in the truest sense; for they alone enjoy its best, purest, and most abundant pleasures and satisfactions; and also have the sting taken out of its severest trials and afflictions. Only as you walk with God are you fitted to enjoy to the full the beauties and blessings of God's world.

"Only Jesus, only Jesus, only
He can satisfy;
Every burden becomes a blessing,
when I know my Lord
is nigh."

Christ alone is the one sufficient solution to all our problems of today,—whether they be personal, family, community, social, economic, racial, industrial national or international.

II. LOSING THE SOUL.—The soul of man is exalted in origin, having been God-breathed. It is immortal in its existence, made not only for time but for eternity. It is designed to glorify and enjoy Him forever. In the hour of death it is so mighty that despite all the skills of medical science, and strong entreaty of loved ones, it hurls the body aside like a toy, and with one leap springs beyond all mortal things into God's eternal presence. That angels rejoice when one soul repents, emphasizes the priceless value of a soul,—as does also the fact that Christ is preparing a specific dwelling place for each of His redeemed followers; and for their redemption God paid a great price,—the greatest that was ever paid for any possession.

The loss of a soul is a great loss. Other losses may be repaired but not this one. Lost friendship may be regained or replaced; lost health may be restored; lost property may be recovered; but the souls of those who reject Christ are lost forever. This is an irreparable loss,—a tragedy without equal.

God gave every man a soul. You have one. It is your very own. You alone have dominion over it. Even God respects your property title to it. Christ stands at your heart's door knocking for admittance. But He will not erase the door in. You will have to open it of your own volition if He ever enters. What will it profit you though you gain the whole world and yet through the rejection of Christ, lose your own soul?

New Design for Rustic Cabin Drawn by Agricultural Specialis

YOUR HOME TODAY and TOMORROW

by W. Wadsworth Wood

Many small and some large homes are equipped with ordinary front and entrance doors. The average bathroom door is adequate, and therefore most of us hesitate to do anything about our entrance doors.

If the average homeowner would study his door, and then compare it with the doors of model homes, he would probably see that the dimensions are approximately the same and that his door would take very little alteration to make it better looking.

There are actually dozens of things which can be done to doors. In the first place, you can change the color of the entire door. You can add curtains which run across the entire door from corner to corner, or you can confine the battens to the lower section only, so as to give the effect of a dutch-door. You can bevel the door edges with wide strips, or with moldings. You can cut the panels out, and add casements, and literally change the entire appearance.

A real Dutch door is quite an expensive item; but any man can convert his own door into one. The first thing to do is to add two more hinges to the door. This must be done while the door is in place, because then you are assured of the correct setting of the new hinges. They must be placed above and below the line at which you intend to cut the door in half.

The next operation is to take the door down, removing the hinges from the door frame, but still attached to the door itself. The door is then cut in half neatly, and the two halves rehung on the frame. The old screw-holes are right there to guide you. The final step is to nail a strip of wood just above the line of cut in the door so that it affords a weather-strip which will shed rain and deflect wind.

This job has been successfully done by many homeowners, and the entire cost is that of two new hinges and a three-foot strip of molding.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WHITMAN—

Refinishing Table

Q.: I have an old drop-leaf table from which I've removed paint, varnish and whatnot and find that the legs are of attractive wood, a dark-brown. The top does not match. Can I stain all the wood table to make it match? To refinish it as it is now (I'm afraid of tipping a walnut stain) and a couple of coats of varnish?

A: If you wish to bleach the wood a little, it will become a most attractive piece. You can then apply your walnut stain to the whole table and follow with quick-drying varnish. To refinish it as it is, you could first smooth the wood by rubbing lightly with fine sandpaper, dusting off, and then applying the varnish.

An alternative would be to leave the top as it is, that is, without bleaching, and apply the bleach only to the legs. You could then stain the legs with a walnut stain and varnish the whole table. However, you will probably not be able to make a perfect match with the table top. (For a really fine job, let a wood finisher do the work.) You might also consider applying a penetrating wax, which can be had clear or stained with a wood stain. A leaflet giving more details is being sent to you.

House Near the Mississippi

Q.: Our house is located in what they call the "Mississippi bottom." Whenever we have high water in the spring it seeps through the concrete and has to be pipped out. This summer it was damp for so long it ruined the electric pump. Is there anything that can be done to remedy the trouble?

A.: Trying to keep out "Ol' Man River" is quite a problem. Ordinary waterproofing might not be sufficient. I believe that a sump pump would take care of most of the flood water, but perhaps a "membrane waterproofing" job might be necessary. This type of waterproofing may run into real money, but if done correctly should keep the basement dry. A leaflet on fixing wet cellars is being sent to you, which may be helpful in any case. Your best move is to call in a waterproofing contractor and let him do what he considers necessary.

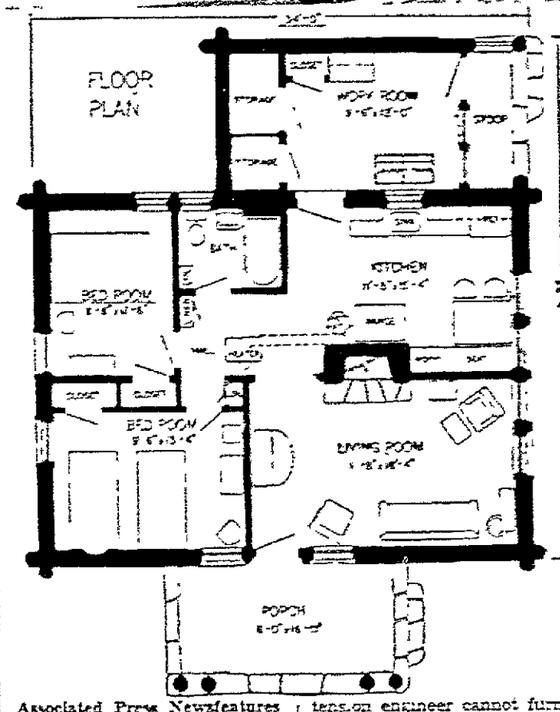
HOMES FOR AMERICANS



Associated Press Newsfeatures

A rustic cabin for a woodland setting, designed as a small farm house with an ample workroom for storage, laundry and utilities not wanted in the kitchen. Without the workroom, this plan is adaptable for a tenant house or summer cottage. It is one of six new designs by agricultural engineers, architects and home economists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in cooperation with state agricultural colleges in the northeast.

Working drawings may be obtained through county agricultural or home demonstration agents. Some states supply the plans free. Others make a nominal charge to cover printing or mailing. If county agent or extension engineer cannot furnish plans the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Division of Farm Buildings and Rural Housing, Beltsville, Md., will advise as to the nearest state handling the plan.

This rustic cottage is identified as Exchange Plan No. 7013. It omits a basement. The house can be heated with a central circulator or floor furnace or by living room fireplace and kitchen range. Standard Frame or masonry construction can be substituted for the logs with stone chimney and foundation shown above. The house covers an area of about 1,160 square feet without workroom or porch, each of the latter amounting to about 130 square feet. These figures offer a guide for local estimates.

New York Stock Quotations

1 O'CLOCK QUOTATIONS

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—Selling seized to dry up in today's stock market with assorted leaders, closing slightly toward recovery, although many issues continued to slide.

A little bidding here and there was attributed to the belief that Friday's liquidation may have been overdone. Caution still was the watchword, however, following the summoning of a special session of congress and the President's address to the nation stressing the need of steps to halt inflation and render quick relief for Europe.

Occasional gainers included U S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, North American, Phelps Dodge, Du Pont, Dow Chemical, Southern Railway N. Y. Central, Standard Oil (NJ), Allied Chemical and Owens-Illinois.

Backward at intervals were Goodrich, Woolworth, Montgomery Ward, Eversharp (on a disappointing earnings statement), Schenley, Texas Co., Kennecott, General Electric, International Harvester and United Aircraft.

Love's Perilous Path

By ADELE GARRISON

THAT Dicky had drawn the same inference from Georges' little speech that I had, was clear to me when he answered the exiled king of Trees in the drawling, lazy tones he sometimes affects, generally when he wants to use a cutting edge.

"If I were in your place, Georges," he said, "I wouldn't waste any sleep over Mary's feeling any strain or undue excitement over your wedding. Under ordinary circumstances, nothing could keep her or Noel from sharing the festivities. But she is so absorbed in this play that I believe she would box the ears of anybody having the temerity to suggest that she take time off even for anything so important as your marriage to Olina."

I saw Georges' ears redden, although his pallor remained, and I made two mental comments: first, that Henry Underwood should extend his facial camouflage a little further, and second that Dicky purposefully had hit below the belt. Obviously, Georges was remembering his last meeting with Mary, when she had soundly slapped him for trying to kiss her good-bye after an impassioned scene in which he had said he never would forget her. I fervently hoped that he would think it a random shot of Dicky's, and that he never would learn the humiliating fact that because of a door inadvertently left ajar, both Dicky and I had been involuntary witnesses of that farewell scene.

But my father was intervening with decision.

"All this is beside the point," he declared. "Margaret, you and Richard will have much to do before tomorrow night when Margaret is to accompany Georges to Sag Harbor. I dislike to hurry you, but—Harry, will you telephone for a taxi man you can trust?"

Harry went to the telephone immediately and dialed a number, while my father went on speaking in lowered tones, with evident regard for the big man's eardrums.

"You had better get in touch with the Veritzens as soon as possible tomorrow morning."

He paused, and Dicky spoke quickly.

"Why not tonight? They are owls, allee samee us folks. They'll be up when we get back, and we can go up and tell them the news and the plan. Then they'll have all night to mull over it."

A protest stirred within me. This family conclave was not the way in which Olina should receive the news of her betrothed husband's safe return and his wish for an immediate marriage.

But before I could speak, Georges voiced my thought.

"Do you mean," he asked in horrified tones, "that Olina will receive the news of my return in the presence of her family? And that my wish to marry her immediately will thus be broached to her? Oh, Aunt Madge"—he turned to me imploringly, using the name Mary, Noel and Olina all use—"can you not manage it some other way, so that you can tell her yourself?"

"In most cases," he went on swiftly, "her mother would be the one to tell her, but she is not very —sympathetic—to me."

What mother would be? I thought, but I knew, in this case, Olga herself would prefer that I break the news of Georges' return to her daughter. I could do nothing, however, until my father made the decision.

It was not long in coming. He spoke swiftly, decisively, as soon as Georges had finished his plea to me.

"You are right, Georges," he said. "I suggest, Margaret, that you have Phillip come down first to your apartment and give the news to him. Then you can arrange to talk to Olga and to Olina yourself."

"We will do that," I said, and my husband cocked a mirthful eyebrow at me at my use of the plural pronoun.

Then Georges put another question.

"Will I have time to write her a little note?" he asked anxiously. "Then I can tell her myself of my wish for an immediate marriage and you can give it to her when you tell her of my return to this country."

"Harry!" My father's voice was sharp, insistent. "If that taxi man has not started, can you head him off and tell him to come a half hour from now?"

"I can try," the big man returned, going to the telephone as Lillian pulled down the lid of her writing desk, and mouched Georges to it.

The royal exile sat down before the desk immediately and began to scribble in frantic haste. Harry Underwood flashed a sardonic grin at his back as he turned from the telephone.

"You don't need to split a pen, Georges, or get writer's cramp, he said. "You have a whole half hour for your epistle."

flung across the 7,300 foot plateau or blown into the 200-foot deep canyon just beyond the impact point.

All bodies were left at the scene until this morning, with guards posted to protect them from coyotes, pending an inquest. Several groups of investigators started official probes today.

Five minutes later the veteran of 15 years of flying on western routes opened his microphone and reported:

"The tail fire is going out We may get down and we may not. Best place we can * * *"

At 12:27 he reported he had turned back for Bryce Canyon airport and said "may make it. Think we have a chance now. Approaching the strip."

The next radio message came from the airport tower here at 12:32 p. m. it said:

"* * * fire one mile east."

The ship had just skimmed across the top of Tropic canyon to the sloping top of a long, sage-brush-covered plateau, seconds of flying time from the landing strip.

Concussion from the explosion was felt clearly five miles away.

PREVIEWS OF COMING ATTRACTIONS AT THE THEATERS

SHOWN ABOVE are Red Skelton and Virginia O'Brien who are teamed for romance and laughs in the new film, "Merton of the Movies," a comedy of a country fellow who becomes a Hollywood movie star. It will be shown Sunday through Tuesday at the Palace theater.

Red Skelton Stars In Palace Picture

Red Skelton, star of radio and screen, plays the leading role in the comedy production, "Merton of the Movies," which will be shown Sunday through Tuesday at the Palace theater. Appearing opposite Skelton is Virginia O'Brien and heading the supporting cast are Leon Ames, Gloria Grahame and Alan Mowbray.

The plot of "Merton of the Movies" revolves around a movie-struck smalltown theater usher who comes to Hollywood to find fame and fortune in silent pictures. He is a natural for comedy, but he dreams of playing high-class drama. However, his talents fall short of his ambitions, and he is advised by his only friend, Phyllis, a real trouper, to work his way up. Phyllis maneuvers him into appearing in a comedy-farce, but he thinks he is starring in a passionate drama of love and adventure.

It is only at the picture's preview that Merton discovers the fraud, and is about to return to his home town. However, the movie makes him an overnight success as the great low-comedian in the business.

Added attractions will include a technicolor musical, "Sweet and Low," a color novelty, "Wilbur the Lion," and the latest news.

"Ivy," a suspenseful drama starring Joan Fontaine, Patric Knowles, Herbert Marshall and Richard Ney, will be shown Wednesday and Thursday.

The theme is that of a girl who cares little for anything but money. Seeing her chance to get what she wants through marriage to a multi-millionaire, she poisons her husband and manages to throw the blame on the man who professes his love for her, figuring in this way to get rid of both with her single act.

Attractions will be a short, "Famous Hollywood Mothers," a talking animal novelty and news.

A double feature, "Something in the Wind" and "Danger Street," is billed for Friday and Saturday. Deanna Durbin, Donald O'Connor and John Dall are the starring players in the former, and heading the cast in the latter are Jane Withers and Robert Lowery. The latest news will also be shown.

State Theater Lists Program for Week

"First Yank Into Tokyo" starring Tom Neal and Barbara Hale, and "Sing While You Dance" with Ellen Drew and Robert Stanton will be shown Sunday and Monday at the State theater.

Billed as a double feature Tuesday and Wednesday is "Two Sisters from Boston" and "Midnight Manhunt." The former stars Jimmy Durante and June Allyson, and heading the cast in the latter are William Gargan and Ann Savage.

George Raft and Sylvia Sidney are the starring players in the picture, "Mr. Ace," which will be shown Thursday through Saturday as the main attraction of a double feature. Completing the billing will be "Rustler's Valley" with William Boyd and George "Gabby" Hayes.

Van Johnson In Cast at Marion

"Romance of Rosy Ridge" starring Van Johnson and Janet Leigh, and "The Robinhood of Monterey" with Gilbert Roland and Chrispin Martin will be shown Sunday and Monday at the Marion theater.

The former is the story of a young school teacher whose buddy dies while fighting with him in the Union Army, and who goes to the latter's Rebel family in Missouri where he falls in love with his buddy's sister.

Billed as a double feature for Tuesday and Wednesday are "Stanley and Livingstone" and "Les Miserable." The former stars Spencer Tracy with Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Nancy Kelly and Richard Greene and heading the cast in the latter are Fredric March and Charles Laughton.

The first screen attraction unfolds the story of newspaper reporter Henry M. Stanley's celebrated search for missionary-explorer Dr. David Livingstone through darkest Africa. The latter picture tells of Jean Valjean who was imprisoned for five terrible years because he stole a loaf of bread and who, upon his release, found himself hunted and hounded by a sinister police detective.

Thursday through Saturday the billing will be "Marshal of Cripple Creek" starring Allan Lane and Bobby Blake, and "Time Out of Mind" with Phyllis Calvert and Robert Hutton.

"Marshal of Cripple Creek" is another in the series of Red Ryder Western dramas with Allan Lane as Ryder and Bobby Blake as his youthful Indian side-kick, Little Beaver.

"Forever Amber" Plays at Ohio

"Forever Amber," the presentation of the record-breaking best-seller, is now playing through Thursday at the Ohio theater. Photographed in technicolor, the story was adapted for the screen from Kathleen Winsor's book which made its appearance in 1944.

Linda Darnell and Cornel Wilde play the romantic leads with Miss Darnell characterizing the title role in the warm and human story of a country girl who becomes the most whispered-about beauty in the gay court of King Charles II. Wilde appears as Bruce Carlton, the dashing cavalier, who remains Amber's No. 1 love through her exciting fight for money and a title.

Other men in Amber's life were Lord Almsbury, Bruce's good friend, played by Richard Greene, Black Jack Mallard, the highwayman, played by John Russell, the Earl of Radcliffe, the man Amber married for his money and title played by Richard Haydn, the handsome Captain Rex Morgan played by Glenn Langan, and the lusty and witty Charles II, played by George Sanders.

"The Unsuspected" starring Joan Caulfield, Claude Rains, Audrey Totter, Constance Bennett and Hurd Hatfield, and introducing Michael North, is billed to open Friday to run for seven days. It is a story of mystery, false love and murder.

ST. MARY TOPS LEAGUE WITH 26-0 WIN OVER RICHWOOD

Locals Hang Up First Victory Over Tigers in Six-Year Feud

By BILL DIEM

The Fighting Irish of St. Mary blanked Richwood, 26-0, at the Harding stadium last night to score their first victory over the Tigers in the six years of Richwood-St. Mary battles.

Punching out their own breaks, the hard hitting Irish stopped two Richwood scoring threats by recovering fumbles, and scoring a touchdown on a blocked punt.

The win was St. Mary's third straight in league encounters and virtually clinched the league title.

Leading by only six points at the half, the Irish charged back out on the field to score another touchdown in the third quarter and two in the fourth. They drove to the Richwood four-yard line in the closing minutes of the game, but Richwood held—helped by the lack of a man on the St. Mary team. Coach Gene Fetter sent in a flock of substitutes on the final Irish drive and somehow failed to send in the eleventh man.

Richwood nearly opened the scoring in the first quarter when they marched from midfield to the Irish nine. Quarterback Les Wall tossed a pass to halfback Wilton McElroy in the end zone, but McElroy caught it going down and it was ruled incomplete.

St. Mary marched back to the Richwood 26 when a pass from Bob Cusick was intercepted by Wall, nipping the threat.

After an exchange of punts, the Irish took over at midfield, but Richwood held and Merchant was forced to punt. McElroy took the punt on his own 20 and was immediately hit hard by end Ed Moloney. McElroy dropped the ball and John Baldauf recovered. Baldauf, Murphy and Schuler took turns carrying the ball to the Richwood one in six plays, and Baldauf plunged off right tackle for the initial tally. Werley's placement was wide.

In the opening minutes of the first half, Richwood advanced to the St. Mary 29, and Vernon Chapman added 15 more yards on a spinner play, but fumbled when hit by a host of Irish tacklers. St. Mary recovered and started a downfield march to the Richwood 30. Dick Schuler sliced through left guard and snaked his way for 26 yards to the four. Schuler plunged over. John Baldauf sneaked over the conversion while Dick Werley faked a placement and the Irish were ahead, 13-0.

Richwood Threatens Again

After the touchdown, Richwood again advanced within the Irish 20, with Marvin Perkins scampering 14 yards on the drive and a Wall to Vic Lyons pass adding another 14 yards. At second down and two to go on the Irish 17, a bad pass from the Richwood center was recovered by Dick Werley on the St. Mary 25.

Richwood held the Irish right there, and at fourth down and 14 to go, Dick Schuler gambled on a fake punt and won. He galloped to the Richwood 47 before being nailed by safety man Les Wall.

A pass from Dick Schuler sent John Baldauf to the 28, and Schuler add d 11 yards, Baldauf eight, and Bob Cusick went the rest of the way for the touchdown. Werley's placement was good.

Richwood took the kickoff on the 32, but a 15-yard penalty and a five yard loss put them on their own 18, when Perkins tried a punt. The Irish charged in and blocked it, and Bill Merchant recovered in the end zone for the final touchdown. Werley's kick was blocked.

Wilton McElroy took the kickoff on the 10 and ran back to the 40, but fumbled the ball when tackled St. Mary recovered and drove down to the nine in the final wild minutes of the game. After holding the Irish in their goal line stand, the Tigers could get but three plays in before the final gun sounded.

After the game, Coach Gene Fetter remarked about the period when only 10 men were playing. "It was confusing. I should have stayed in the stands."

Ed Murphy and Tom Wagner were injured in the game, Murphy suffering a knee injury, and Wagner a hip bruise.

Richwood fullback Vernon Chapman and right end Vic Lyons sustained leg injuries in the battle.

Regular Richwood right end, Max Cowgill was unable to dress for the game because of a hand injury sustained Tuesday when he was hitching a trailer onto a tractor. Cowgill sat out the game in the press box, unhappy that he couldn't take a fourth crack at the Irish. He a senior and has played since his freshman days.

In the Irish rally after the game, someone brought the news that Bill Merchant had a touchdown at a quarter of ten and a baby brother at a quarter after ten. A boy was born to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Merchant last night.

BELLEVUE CRUSHES GALION SQAD, 44-0

Special to The Star

GALION, Oct. 24—An inspired Bellevue team ran riot over a very tired and bedraggled Galion eleven on Galion's gridiron last night and when the final score was tallied, it stood at Bellevue 44, Galion 0.

Bellevue backs held a field day. Jack Gable, Baldwin, Morgan, Nyerges, and Solbano, each added six points to their credit. Bruckner went over twice for twelve. Lepley kicked the extra points.

The only time Galion ever came close to scoring was when St. Clair recovered a fumble on Bellevue's 44 and a 24-yard pass took the ball to the 16. Solbano then intercepted another pass and broke up the scoring threat. This came early in the second quarter, from then on it was all Bellevue

CRESTLINE DEFEATS WILLARD, 20-13

Special to The Star

WILLARD, Oct 25 — Crestline topped Willard here last night, 20-13, in a nip and tuck Northern Ohio league battle. Crestline's league record now stands at three wins and two losses, Willard, 1-5

Willard took the lead in the first quarter when a jump pass from Jacobs to Gill covered the final four yards in a touchdown drive. Willard missed the conversion.

At the end of the first half, a Winemiller to Bob Sand pass connected for 20 yards and the tieing touchdown. The same pass worked for the conversion to put Crestline ahead, 7-6.

Willard pulled ahead in the third quarter when Gene Carpenter dashed around right end for 41 yards and the touchdown. A plunge added the extra point.

Crestline tied it up, 13-13, in the same period when Sand went over on a buck after a downfield march.

In the final quarter, Crestline's left guard, Jimmy Johnson, intercepted a Willard pass on their 30 and galloped over for the winning touchdown. The kick for the extra point was good.

Kenton Fumble Sets Up 14-12 Celina Win

Special to The Star

KENTON, Oct. 25 — Kenton's Wildcats fumbled the ball on Celina's 43 yard line in the last minutes of the game at Kenton last night and it spelled the difference between victory and defeat.

With three minutes to play and leading, 12-7, Haudenschild, Kenton left half, dropped the ball on an off tackle play and Celina recovered. Passing desperately for a 41-yard gain, Dorsten, Celina left half, heaved a 16-yard pass to Alt over the line for the score. Trenter, kicking specialist supreme, then booted the extra point as the gun went off. It was Celina 14, Kenton 12.

Both touchdowns for Celina were set up by long passes Kenton scored early in the second quarter after a long drive from their own 43 Bailey went over from around right end from Celina's 21. The extra points spelled the difference, Kenton failing by rushing and Trenter kicking sure and true for the ones that counted.

MT. GILEAD, Oct. 25—Marysville Monarchs outscored Mt. Gilead here last night, 14-6, to move into a second place tie with Carey in the Mid-State league race.

Marysville opened up again in the fourth period after recovering a Mt. Gilead fumble on their own 48. Three first downs later they were on the Indian five and Harold Hill plunged over for the second touchdown. Again Grimes' kick was good.

Mt. Gilead took the kickoff and returned to the 45. In three first downs they moved to the Monarch 17, and Jack Lancaster sliced off left tackle for the rest of the distance. His try for the extra point was not good.

The Indians fumbled three times in Marysville territory to muff scoring opportunities

Warren Harding Knocks Out Top-Ranking Massillon, 20-13

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 25—Warren Harding uncorked a stunning 20-point attack in the first quarter last night to flop the mighty Massillon Tigers, 20-13, before 12,000 fans.

The Tigers, voted best in the state last week, came back to score in the third and fourth periods, but Harding handed Massillon its first defeat of the season. It was Warren's first win over the Tigers since 1944.

Warren, given but four points in last week's voting, outrushed the Tigers 14 first downs to six, and 250 yards to 22.

Five of last week's top 10 teams ran their victory strings to seven consecutives with wins yesterday or Thursday.

Barberton, second in the voting, ran up a 49-0 score over Niles; third-place Middletown downed Springfield, 9-7. Fremont Ross, fifth, handed Bowling Green its first loss, 45-0, Columbus West, seventh, rolled over Columbus Linden, 27-0, and Elyria, ninth, battled to a 13-6 victory over Cleveland Shaw

Canton McKinley, rated at the top early in the season, rolled up one of the larger counts with a 48-6 victory over Steubenville.

Down in the Southeastern Ohio league, Gallipolis ran up its seventh straight win by setting down Logan, 13-6 The loss was the first of the season for Logan.

Nelsonville, coached by former O.S.U. quarterback Byron Eby, took its second consecutive conference victory last night by whipping Jackson, 26-6. The win, incidentally, is the first conference victory for Nelsonville in eight years

Martins Ferry rolled over East Liverpool, 26-0, and Hamilton, pre-season favorite, topped Portsmouth, 18-6.

Newcomerstown and Carrollton battled to a scoreless tie while New Lexington and Dresden tied at 19 and Anderson and Country Day School tied at 18.

New Boston's 59 to Washington Rural's 0 was the largest margin of the weekend, followed by Manchester's 56-0 verdict over Magadore.

CALEDONIA TUMBLES CHESTERVILLE, 45-24

BUCYRUS NIPPED, 6-0 BY UPPER SANDUSKY

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Oct. 25—The Upper Sandusky Rams extended their winning streak to seven straight games here last night by topping the Bucyrus Redmen, 6-0.

The undefeated Rams pulled the game out of a scoreless deadlock in the final period when halfback Carroll Kent intercepted a Bucyrus pass on the Redmen 30 and galloped over for the six-pointer. The try for the extra point was not good.

The Redmen outplayed the Rams, gaining a total of 148 yards to the Rams' 137, and garnering eight first downs to the Rams' three, but quarterback Truka's intercepted pass set down the Redmen for the second time this year.

It was Upper Sandusky's sixth win in the league

WASHINGON

HERE'S an ABC on why President Truman has called congress into special session to help France and Italy.

This winter France and Italy will be badly in need of things like coal, wheat and oil. They'll have to buy them to get them.

This country has those things But Americans who sell them to France and Italy want to be paid in dollars.

France and Italy, although they have money of their own, have run out of dollars.

James Marlow

They could use their own money to buy things here if Americans would take their money, such as the French franc. But the Americans want dollars.

France and Italy, using their money, might be able to buy from their European neighbors the things they need—if those neighbors had the coal and wheat and oil to sell. But they're hard up, too.

This country is the one which can spare the things France and Italy need.

But how can they get American dollars to buy what they need here? That is what Mr. Truman has called congress into session to solve.

Should this country let France and Italy have the needed dollars as a gift or a loan? Congress will decide.

BETWEEN NOW AND NEXT April France will need about $357,000,000 and Italy about $285,000,000, or a total of about $642,000,000.

This money for France and Italy is, as noted, just stop-gap aid to get them through the bitter winter months ahead.

But this help for those two countries is not the Marshall plan. So congress will have a double job:

▶When it comes into special session in November it will work out the stop-gap aid for France and Italy.

▶Then, at its regular session which starts in January, congress will tackle the Marshall plan and probably not finish working on it until late in the spring.

The Marshall plan is a long-range program to get Europe, including France and Italy, on its feet.

Aid under the Marshall plan would continue four or five years and may cost us about $16,000,000,000.

Sixteen European nations, including France and Italy, are taking part in the Marshall plan. This is how that got started:

The help this country has been giving Europe since the war ended hasn't put Europe back on its feet.

IF WE STOP HELPING Europe, the leaders in this country fear that some of those European nations will turn communist out of desperation.

So the problem was how to continue helping Europe in such a way that the help really would get Europe straightened out.

Last June 5, in a speech at Harvard university, Secretary of State Marshall said something like this:

"Europe, we want to help you. But out help can't go on forever. Before we give you any more, you'll have to show signs of being willing and able to help yourselves.

"So get together. Try to work out a deal by which, over a number of years, you'll work together for the good of all of you.

"One country should try to spare as much of something—say coal—as it can for a neighbor who needs it. You can work together in many ways.

"If you get together and draw up a plan of self-help, then you can ask us for the remaining help you need."

Sixteen nations took Marshall at his word and met for weeks in Paris. They worked out a two fold plan:

▶For helping themselves and one another.

▶The amount of additional help, about $16,000,000,000, they'd need from us over the next four years.

Once congress finishes with the business of stop-gap aid for France and Italy it will take on the Marshall plan.

Treating Ringworm of Feet

Medicine, like industry, was largely mobilized during the war to serve the men of our fighting forces. With so much talent concentrating on the medical problems of most common occurrence among our troops, it is not surprising that new forms of treatment were found for a variety of conditions.

Among these new treatments are several for ringworm of the feet, which used to be a very troublesome and stubborn disorder. It is still a very common one.

Ringworm of the feet causes itching, cracking and peeling of the skin on the soles of the feet and between the toes, frequently with the formation of blisters. The condition, if neglected, may be so extensive as to cause pain and disability.

Some experiments were carried out under the Research Division of the United States Navy to determine as accurately as possible the value of certain substances in the prevention and treatmen of ringworm of the feet.

In testing the various preparations, one type was put on one foot and another type on a similar area of the other foot. Then, after a period of time, the feet were examined to determine in which instance ringworm infection had developed. About one-fourth of the men studied had evidence of ringworm infection of the feet.

The preparation tried out contained such substances as zinc undecylenate, sodium propionate, or calcium propionate, and combinations of these preparations. Certain iodine-containing substances known as dioduquin and vioform in the form of powders were also used.

It was found that the zinc undecylenate preparation was the most effective in preventing ringworm infections. With the use of this substance more than eight out of ten of those tested were kept from developing the condition.

The iodine-containing preparations were next in efficiency. These preparations were also found effective in clearing up the ringworm infection.

As I have stated, these ringworm infections of the feet vary greatly in their extent and severity. Treatment which may quickly relieve one type, may not only be valueless in another but may even serve to make the condition worse.

Thus when a ringworm infection of the feet is present, the wisest thing to do is to consult a skin specialist, who will then be able to determine what sort of treatment will be most satisfactory.

For example, in an acute widespread case, it may be necessary to use one type of preparation at the beginning, followed by another preparation to complete the cure.

In some cases, X-ray treatments are of some value, but such treatments are not necessary in all cases. Old cases, where the infection has been present for some time, require different treatment from recent ones.

Thus, the only safe course is to consult a specialist who will know which of the new treatments brought out by the war is safest and best in any given case.

Questions and Answers

G. W.: I have always had a heavily coated tongue. Please tell me what I can do.

Answer: Coated tongue sometimes comes from constipation, while in many cases, no cause for it can be discovered.

If one is in good physical condition and feels perfectly well, no attention should be paid to the fact that the tongue is coated.

Attention!!
What have you around the house—attic—cellar—in storage that you would like to turn into cash—I will sell all your household goods in a modern building. Privately or at auction for as much cash as you could receive by selling them yourself—much quicker and also I can sell things that you have tried to sell and didn't have good results on selling. We handle the best of everything or we will take anything you have to offer. We are not hard to deal with any time. My motto is, "Do unto others as you would with them to do unto you." Courtesy—honesty—on the square to all interested—is to the crowds—that we have—standing room only. Ask the folks who have been coming to our auctions. There is a reason—May I tell you why—Don't forget me when you have something to sell. Dial 2901 any time or bring your articles out to 701 N. Main St.

Byrnes Sees Russia "Stalling" on Treaty

By The Associated Press

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 24—Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes predicts that Russia will stall indifinitely on a peace treaty for Germany and says the United States, Britain and France may as well call their own peace conference without waiting any longer.

"If they are going to do it a year hence—why not do it now?" he asked an audience of South Carolina fraternal groups meeting here Wednesday night under sponsorship of the Masons.

Byrnes took occasion to clarify what he meant when he said in his recently-published book "Speaking Frankly" that if Russia persists in holding eastern Germany after the other Allies have made peace there should be measures of "last resort" as prescribed by a majority of the United Nations security council.

"There is no suggestion," he said in his speech, "as to whether such collective action should be persuasion, economic pressure or military action. That would be for the nations to determine under the circumstances existing at that time."
